

The Reopening Task Force has updated guidelines for: indoor Shabbat morning services, Family Room on Shabbat mornings, and Sundays when Talmud Torah is in session.

Shabbat Morning

The capacity in the sanctuary on Shabbat morning services, on a regular Shabbat, is now 40. Children under 6 do not count towards capacity; they are engaged in Junior Congregation in the Family Room for most of the service.

Shabbat lunch can resume in the Ohel only. There continues to be no eating or drinking on Shabbat morning in the building.

Bnai Mitzvah capacity in the sanctuary on Shabbat morning is 75, and that includes all ages. All attendees must be vaccinated. The RTF will revisit the issue of food in the building before the first scheduled B'nai Mitzvah, which is in May 2022.

Family Room on Shabbat

The capacity in the Family Room during Shabbat morning in-person services is 10 children and 3 adults. All adults must be vaccinated. Everyone must wear a mask.

Talmud Torah Sundays

Parents/guardians should drop off students at the north/Talmud Torah/Preschool door as usual.

After drop off, vaccinated adults may come around to the south/main entrance and enter the building. The main entryway will be sectioned off and available for vaccinated adults to hang out in the new "Boker Tov Lounge" while their children are in Talmud Torah.

We are using the honor system for proof of vaccination on Sunday mornings. Please do not hang out in the "Boker Tov Lounge" if you are unvaccinated.

Eating and food is not permitted in the Lounge at this time. Drinks are permitted, but masks need to stay on while not drinking.

Masks

Masks must fully cover the nose and mouth and not be soiled. Staff may request people who are wearing old, soiled masks or not wearing masks correctly to replace their mask with a surgical mask. TBI will provide a surgical mask.
